been sent to Martinique, and from the United States such large quantities of provisions are being forwarded that all danger of famine is passed. There is danger, however, of pestilence, and unless thorough precautions are taken there will be an epidemic of disease. The streams are flowing as usual, and there is no longer any danger of water famine. Cattle are suffering for want of food, but this will not last long.

PANIC-STRICKEN PEOPLE.

FORT DE FRANCE, Island of Martinique, Wednesday, May 21, 4 p. m.—Mont Pelee seems to be resting after yesterday's fearful manifestation of energy. Streams of frightened refugees have been pouring into Fort de France from all the surrounding country. These people are not destitute, but they are terrified. They want only one thing, and that is to be taken far away from this island, with which they say, the gods are angry, and which they will destroy by fire before it sinks under the sea.

The consuls here and the officers of the war vessels in the harbor are waylaid by persons crazed with fear and begging to be carried away.

The weather is now calm and beautiful, but the mountain is veiled in volcanic clouds, which often assume a very threatening aspect, and occasional rumblings are heard. Some heavy and very welcome rain fell this morning.

The United States steamer Dixie, Captain Henry York, arrived today, after a quick and safe passage. Her passengers include many world famous scientists. Prof. Robert T. Hill, government geologist; Prof. C. E. Borchgrevink, the Antarctic explorer; Messrs. George Curtis and George Kennan, and many magazine writers and correspondents are also among those who arrived on the steamer.

The Dixie began landing her enormous cargo of supplies early and the storehouses on shore soon became congested and this is the greatest difficulty of the administration.

The United States steamer Potomac went to inspect St. Pierre, with the commander of the war vessels now here. With the greatest difficulty the party succeeded in making a landing. The effects of the outburst of yesterday were tremendous. The huge basalt towers of the cathedral were hurled flat to the earth. The bombardment of volcanic stones is not sufficient to account for this, and all evidences point to a furious blast of blazing gas, traveling at enormous speed and with incalculable force. The deposit of boulders, ashes and angular stones is enormous. Not a human being saw what happened at St. Pierre yesterday morning. Fort de France is overwhelmed.

The second eruption was many times more violent than that which effected St. Pierre and swept its people from the earth. Nor has volcanic activity ceased. Vast columns of smoke and gas still pour from the great crater; and new fissures have opened on the mountain sides and are vomiting yellow whirlwinds, which rush intermittently now from one point and now from another. Boiling mud also is thrown out at times in torrents that reach the sea and produce small tidal waves.

From a sombre, silent city of death and desolation, St. Pierre has become a hideous amphitheatre of fiery, roaring destruction.

The people are convinced that God is angry with the island and means to scourge it with fire and then sink it in the ocean. Utter and unreasoning fear possesses all souls. Even Fort de France is believed to be unsafe. The presence of the relief ships, however, is helpful to the people, who say, "The American flag makes safety."

The Potomac could not get close to St. Pierre. The Dixie will sail tomorrow for St. Pierre, but the other vessels will remain.

The scientists who have arrived will examine into the question of the danger of peaks of Carbet near Fort de France becoming active volcanoes. The outburst yesterday afternoon means a ruined island, as all confidence is lost.

"We want not food, but only to leave," is the cry of rich and poor.

DANGER AT FORT DE FRANCE.

NEW YORK, May 20.—A cable to the Herald from Fort de France says: Fort de France is in a terrible panic tonight, and Pelee threatens the city with destruction. The volcano has become more active than ever, and refugees are crowding into the city panicking, and fearing the end of the world is at hand. For twenty-four hours Pelee has been in constant eruption, and the island has been shaken by the workings of the forces within the earth. Hundreds have fled to the ships in the harbor, which are now crowded. Thirty thousand are on shore, cut off from escape if Pelee pours its fires down upon them. A catatym is feared, even worse than that which recently filled the world with horror.

Last night was one of terror here. The earth seemed to have lost its foundations, and out of Pelee poured a storm of death. The culmination came this morning with a series of explosions that shook down walls in the city and sent the inhabitants fleeing in terror to the open country. Thousands fell on their knees in the streets crying to God for mercy. Clouds of ashes and stones filled the sky and then descended on the city.

The force of the explosions was much greater than that which accompanied the eruption that destroyed St. Pierre. When great sheets of lightning illumined the sky, through the terrible black smoke clouds, it could be seen that Pelee was throwing out great columns of lava and stones. The air was perfectly calm, but the waters of the Caribbean sea were lashed into a terrible fury, indicating that the same force that causes the volcano to labor is also working tremendous changes at the bottom of the sea.

The eruption somewhat subsided this evening, and the fears of the people were calmed, but there is still great danger that the city will be overwhelmed, and the vessels in the harbor have steam up in readiness to get away at a moment's notice.

A FLAMING ROCK.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Captain Hansen of the Norwegian steamer Tallman, which has arrived here from Barbadoes, brings a story of a volcanic outburst on Diamond Rock, an uninhabited island two miles off the southwest coast of Martinique. On the morning of May 13, as his vessel was passing the rock, Captain Hansen says a flare of fire was seen several times. Standing in closer to investigate, he found the island on fire and smoke coming out of the peak of the rock, which is 300 feet high. The Tallman, which
